Mr. J. Berry, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Calgary, was visiting with Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Liesemer over the week end. Mr. Berry, who has a splendid tenor voice, sang two solos, "He shall wipe the tear from every eye" and "The Holy City," at the Presbyterian church services on Sunday evening which was greatly appreciated by the large congregation present.

Innisfail unfortunately suffered through the fire fiend on Thursday last to the amount of $25,000. The fire started from the Triple livery barn, burning the barn, the Methodist church and parsonage, the Crown Lumber Co's lumber yard and several other places.

As the editor of this great family journal will be away for a few days renewing friendships with other newspaper men of the province he would consider it a favor if any person has any items of interest to call up telephone No. 12 and notify Mr. Newsom who will have charge of the office in our absence.

J. E. Stauffer, M. L. A., leaves on Sunday to take up his duties in the Legislature which opens on Tuesday. Any person wishing to see Mr. Stauffer personally on Municipality matters can do so by coming to his office on Saturdays when he will be at home. He will have an assistant in his office while he is away.

Bryce Pope, who it will be remembered was located in Didsbury for a short time about two years ago, was killed at Leggetts farm near the big Red Deer river on Saturday last. His death was caused by getting tangled in his well drilling outfit. The body was taken to his old home in North Carolina on Sunday.

One for Mathematician

A noted mathematician, considered by many a wonder, stopped at a hotel in a small town in the English provinces. There were a number of travelers staying there and there was also a gathering of medical men. One of the doctors thought it would be a joke to tell the mathematician that some of the M.D.'s had decided to kidnap him and take out his brains to learn how it was he was so good in mathematics. He was then asked by them what he was going to do about it. He replied: Why, I shall simply go on without brains just as you doctors are doing.

What May be Expected

Chug, chug! Brrr, Brrr! Honk, Honk! Zip, zip!

The pedestrian paused at the intersection of two busy thoroughfares. He saw a car making at him from one side, a motor-cycle on the other, a motor-lorry in the rear, and a taxicab threatened his waistcoat buttons.

Zing-ling! He looked up, and saw a runaway aeroplane in rapid descent. There was but one chance. He was standing on a manhole-cover. Quickly seizing it he lifted the lid and jumped into the hole, but alas! only to be run over by a tube train.

AN UNUSUAL ACTIVITY

President of Eddy Company Takes Cheerful View of Business Situation

Mr. W. H. Rowley, president of the E. B. Eddy Company, with twenty-five or more branches in Canada, with resident agents in every large city from Halifax to Victoria, and with sixteen or eighteen thousand customers and correspondents in this country, takes a very cheerful view of the business situation.

Mr. Rowley told The World yesterday that their business throughout Canada was better during the first half of 1913 than for the same period of 1912, that is, sales were greater, although profits are less. Larger sales show increased consumption; smaller profits indicate greater cost of material, higher wages and cut prices by senseless rivalry.

The chief channel of the distribution of Eddy's wares is through the wholesale grocery and jobbing trades. Until a few weeks ago, buying was done with great caution and only for immediate needs; now, however, there is less feeling of anxiety than earlier in the year and since the middle of June business is flowing more freely and goods are more in demand.

Correspondence from every city in Canada shows that business in all lines is becoming stronger and healthier. The "hand to mouth" buying of a few weeks ago is succeeded by unusual midsummer activity because the wholesaler's stocks got low, the retailer's shelves were bare, but now there is a better, surer and more easy feeling among buyers; and the necessities of life, such as matches, buckets, tubs, paper bags and paper of all kinds are in good demand for daily use.

Mr. Rowley said: "The majority of the orders received at the works at Hull for a month past are marked 'rush,' 'hurry,' 'a.s.a.p.' while nearly every order calls for quick delivery, and that while the demand for goods, the lack of supplies and material, high wages and cost of making will keep the prices firmer, I expect to see higher lists on many lines and an end put to cut prices, although our lists do not vary very much, taking one year with another."—The Toronto World.

A Bouquet

A poetical old shopkeeper was always doing kind things and saying lovely ones. One spring he was having his shop repainted. He told the painter to leave a certain corner untouched for the time being; he explained that the young people, at that season did all their courting there and he didn't want them to get smugged.

But, objected the painter, these young folks would be fools not to know the smell of fresh paint.

Young fellow, said the old shopkeeper, you have never had a girl, that's plain. If you had, you'd know that when folks are in love, everything—wet paint included—smells like violets and roses.

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.

Gentlemen,—I have used MINARD'S LINIMENT on my vessel and in my family for years, and for the every day ills and accidents of life I consider it has no equal.

I would not start on a voyage without it, if it cost a dollar a bottle.

CAPT. F. R. DESJARDIN, Schrs. "Storke," St. Andre, Kamouraska.

He lay upon his dying bed, His time was nearly o'er; And with a feeble voice he asked, What is the latest score? Weep not for me, my boy, he cried, I bow to Heaven's high will; But tell me quickly—tell me—Is The home team leading still? No, said the boy, they muffed a fly. Then said the old man, let me die.

One day a young colored man of sporty appearance dropped in at a country livery stable and said he needed a job. He looked promising, so he was set to work greasing the axles of a buggy.

In a remarkably short space of time he reported the task finished. Look here, said his new boss, do you mean to say you've greased all four of them wheels already?

Well, rejoined the new man, I've greased the two front ones.

And why haven't you greased the two hind ones?

Well, said the new man again, so long's the two front ones goes all right the two hind ones jes' natchelly got to follow!

Nothing Extraordinary

An American tourist in England was out sightseeing. They took him aboard the old battleship Victory, Nelson's flagship. An English sailor escorted the American over the vessel, and coming to a raised brass tablet on the deck he said, as he reverently removed his hat:

Here, sir, is the spot where Lord Nelson fell.

Oh, is it? replied the American blandly. Well, that is not surprising. I nearly tripped over the darned thing myself.

Unwarranted Pride

Professor (coming from his club, holding up his umbrella to his wife) —You see, I haven't forgotten my umbrella.

Mrs. Professor—But my dear, you didn't take your umbrella with you; you left it at home.

Won the Wager

At a certain club the other day two members were arguing about will power. The conceited man, who was in the habit of boring all present with his pointless tales, said that his will was stronger than that of his friend.

You are wrong there, said the quiet man, and I will prove it in this way. You go and stand in that corner and I will will you to come out of it. You will against me, and I'll wager I will have you from that corner before I have commanded you a second time.

The smart one took up the challenge and put himself in the corner. The quiet man said, in a commanding voice:

Come out of that corner.

The other grinned and shook his head. The quiet man sat down and looked at him steadily. Five minutes passed, and then the man of will said, with a sneer:

Hadn't you better give it up! I don't feel any influence at all, and I can't stand here all the evening.

There is no hurry, said the quiet man, and I have a very comfortable seat. There is no time-limit, except that you are to come out before I ask you twice, and as I don't intend to ask you again until this day week, I think you'll soon begin to feel the influence. The smart man came out.

An Oil for All Men.—The sailor, the soldier, the fisherman, the lumberman, the out-door laborer and all who are exposed to injury and the elements will find in Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil a true and faithful friend. To ease pain, relieve colds, dress wounds, subdue lumbago and overcome rheumatism, it has no equal. Therefore, it should have a place in all home medicines and those taken on a journey.

Our Funny Children

Little Ralph, an only child of four, had been permitted to stay up one evening when his parents had company. At the table he made a quaint remark, at which all the guests laughed. He instantly saw that he had made a hit, and with commendable enterprise sought to follow it up.

Dad, he shouted, what was that other smart thing I said yesterday?

Not Guilty

Mistress—Bridget, whatever becomes of the cutlery? I am continually missing some. Really, I suspect the dustmen as they come through the scullery.

Cook—Faith, ma'am, ye're wrong there entirely. They're too honest at all. Why, they brought back thray knives last week that they'd found in the dustbin!

Case for a Good Lawyer

Why are you so sad? an acquaintance asked a young man whose aunt had just died. You never appeared to care much for the poor lady.

I didn't said the youth dolefully; but I was the means of keeping her in a lunatic asylum during the last five years of her life. She has left me all her money, and now I have got to prove that she was of sound mind.

Pshaw! exclaimed Miss Yerner impatiently. I am sure we will miss the first act. We have waited a good many minutes for that mother of mine.

Hours, I should say, Mr. Slowman retorted crossly.

Ours? Oh, George! she cried, and laid her blushing cheek upon his shirt front.

A Valuable Secret

Father Dooley had just tied the knot and looked expectant. The bride looked sheepish, and Pat, shifting from one foot to another, looked guilty. At last he began:

I—I—don't like to be mane, father, but I changed me clothes in a hurry and left me money in me other pants. Then he added, in a whisper: Take me down in the cellar; I'm a plumber, and I'll show ye how to fix the gas-meter so't won't register more than forty per cent.

At the Supper Table

The young man who had taken the debutante in to dinner was talking art.

Are you fond of etchings? he asked. As a general rule, yes, she answered, looking up into his eyes with an engaging frankness that threatened havoc to his heart; but, she added hastily, as he started to say something pretty, not any tonight, thank you. It is rather late. A small piece of jelly will be sufficient.

Enough Said

Brown—What did your wife say about your being so late home the other night?

Jones—Nothing at all. She just sat down at the piano and played "Tell me the Old, Old Story."

When he comes soft soaping around with an ax to grind just suggest to him that he get a motor attachment for his jaw and do the whole job himself.

His Explanation

At the breakfast table the other morning he was relating to his wife an incident that occurred at the Club the previous night. The chairman offered a silk hat to the member who could stand up and truthfully say that during his married life he had never kissed any woman but his own wife.

And, would you believe it, Mary?—not one stood up! George, his wife said, why didn't you stand up?

Well, he replied, I was going to, but I look awful in a silk hat.

The Optimist

Crash! Down the kitchen stairs fell the entire trayful of crockery from the dining-room. Not even the salt-cellar remained unbroken.

In the dining-room sat husband and wife, staring blankly at each other. What did it all mean? But this was a time for action, and the mistress rushed to the door. Jane, Jane! she cried whatever have you done?

Jane smiled. Oh, mum, she replied, it's only the dinner things, mum. What a good thing I hadn't washed 'em up!

A Model Farm

This district can boast of a great many well kept farms, and as we stated in last week's issue the owners of these farms are going extensively into mixed farming and are succeeding where some have failed when depending upon grain alone. It was the privilege of the writer with one or two other friends to be the guests of Mr. J. W. Bicknell and sons, and also Mrs. Bicknell, one afternoon last week at their farm of 320 acres about five miles northeast of town. While visiting there we were shown what can be done in a short time and at very little cost to make dairying not only a paying proposition but also a pleasure. Mr. Bicknell realized early that as the country grew and as the market for dairy products started closer at home that sanitary arrangements on the farm where milk and butter were produced for sale in these markets would have to comply with laws laid down for the preservation of health in these market centers, consequently he "took the bull by the horns," as the saying is and beat the regulation to it, to use a slang expression. He moved to his farm three years ago, buying it from Mr. W. J. Fulkerth, formerly living in Washington and California. He came up here with his sons with the intention of going into grain raising but after being here a short time he came to the conclusion that this was one of the best mixed farming countries in the world, and laid his plans to go into this work. Today he has 250 acres under cultivation, and is feeding nearly all that he raises to his own stock with the exception of his seed grain. He has 120 acres of the finest oats in the country which will likely yield from 75 to 100 bushels to the acre; his other crops are barley and rye.

THE DAIRY BRANCH

If there is one section of their farming enterprises which the Messrs. Bicknell take more pride in than any other it is the dairy branch of the farm. They have a large cow barn that is a model of cleanliness, and is also arranged to make the work of caring for their cattle an easy one. The barn is about 30 x 50 feet with lots of light. On each side are feeding stalls about four feet wide, without partitions, running the whole length of the barn, making it very easy to throw down feed to the cattle. There is a range of head stalls running lengthwise of the barn and behind each row of cattle there is an open drain about eight inches deep and 12 inches wide which carries off all liquids and from which the manure is easily cleaned out, thus keeping the cattle clean as well as the barn floors. After the milking is completed the milk is taken in the cans to a metal tank, through which runs a spring of clear cold water of 38 degrees where it is kept until ready to be brought to town to be shipped out. Mr. Bicknell stated that the milk heat never went over 40 degrees when it reached the depot.

The milk is all weighed and is tested with a Babcock tester, and if they find that a cow is not up to their standard they dispose of it at once as they figure that it costs no more to feed and keep a good milk producer than it does a poor one, which is mighty good business. They have a herd of 26 head, some of which are fine Holstein cattle. They have one Guernsey cow which gives 54 lbs. of milk per day.

It will pay anyone to go out and see Mr. Bicknell's arrangements for his dairy cattle. Of course not all farms are situated as this one is on a fine slope which provides excellent drainage, nor have all farms such a fine running spring of cold water, but in a great many cases the arrangements for sanitary conditions as on this farm can easily be carried out.

All branches of mixed farming are carried on, horses, cattle, pigs, chickens, all have a place in the interior economy of this farm, but it is in their dairy cattle and their products in which the Messrs. Bicknell are most interested.

After a trip around the farm the visitors were the guests of Mrs. M. Bicknell who had provided a good lunch at which the fine creamy milk produced on the farm had a high place although the other good things to eat and drink were also greatly appreciated after the inspection of the farm which had given the visitors a good appetite, especially one, who was a big fat fellow from town.

A vast amount of ill health is due to impaired digestion. When the stomach fails to perform its functions properly the whole system becomes deranged. A few doses of Chamberlain's Tablets is all you need. They will strengthen your digestion, invigorate your liver, and regulate your bowels, entirely doing away with that miserable feeling due to faulty digestion. Try it. Many others have been permanently cured—why not you? For sale by all dealers.

TRUE CO-OPERATION

Co-operation, when based on business principles, is all right, but co-operation based on prejudice never can succeed. True co-operation must include the rights of every person, whether he be producer, distributor, or consumer, and co-operation of a few is not co-operation, it is combination, and carries all the odium of a trust, which the co-operator is so ready to condemn in others.

H. E. OSMOND, Proprietor.

THE Calgary Board of Health are evidently taking precautions to insure a pure milk supply for Calgary, but there seems to be some discrimination in the way these precautions are being carried out. Didsbury, as it is well known, is called the dairy town of the C. & E. R., and more milk and cream is being supplied to the cities from this district than from any other along the line. Evidently this has caused the Calgary authorities to take more stringent precautions in this district than others from which milk and cream is shipped. It is reported that at neither of the towns to the south and north of us, from which they also receive some of their milk supply, are they carrying out the same regulations that they are here, which is not fair dealing. There seems to be a nigger in the fence somewhere, although they are not to be blamed for taking every precaution to preserve the health of their city. They are also trying to put more of a burden upon the shoulders of the farmers by trying to make them pay for the tuberculin test which according to the provincial health regulations is to be paid for by the city, town or village ordering same. The clause in the regulations reads as follows:

77. The local board (of health) of every city, town or village shall cause every cow kept for the purpose of public milk supply to be inspected as to its general health, and in addition the said board shall provide for the testing of every such cow by "Tuberculin" by an officer at the expense of said board.

The Didsbury Dairymen's Association has taken up the matter with the Calgary authorities and it is to be hoped that both parties to the trouble will come to some arrangement whereby these troubles may be overcome.

At last some of the larger papers are taking up the matter of "over education," if it can be called that, which is taking place in the Alberta schools and which is caused by the provincial department of Education in setting the studies, or in other words the school curriculum. This curriculum is certainly "fierce" and formidable, and is a farce to the majority of the children who do not intend becoming school teachers or whose parents cannot afford to send them to college or university. The most needful studies for the ordinary child have to be crammed in order to make room for studies that will be of no earthly use to them. The following taken from the Calgary Herald of a recent date explains the matter and the editorial was written after interviewing many of Calgary's foremost educators.

The interviews were instructive, inasmuch as they brought to light the real reason for the over burdening of pupils. The school curriculum, which is directed by the provincial department of education, is as antiquated as hoop skirts. It is burdened with academic topics beyond all reasonable limits. For instance; pupils in grade eight of the public schools are supposed to cover the whole history of the world in their final year. They are liable to examination on any event from the time of the flood until the date that the latest historical text books went to press.

Any reasonable person knows that no child, if he spent his entire school years studying the one subject, could master all the events of history during school life. Why then put the whole history into the curriculum. It only tends to destroy the real capacity of the pupil to effectively absorb knowledge, because it crams the mind to overflowing and ends in a mass of heterogeneous generalities that no memory can retain.

We quote the item of history as one example of many procurable to show how impractical the present curriculum is. While many new studies have been introduced the field covered by old subjects has been enlarged. Children, instead of being taught necessary things thoroughly are compelled to make an effort to learn everything. Of course they fail. The system of overcrowding the curriculum defeats the very objects of primary and elementary education because pupils have to cover such a vast field that they cannot really gain permanent knowledge.

THAW and his lawyers still continue to be able to overcome his deportation to the United States. The latest turn of the case has been won by them and Thaw still remains in Canada, until September 15th at any rate. Whatever may have been at the bottom of his troubles in the first place has nothing to do with the fact that he is now a fugitive from justice, and had it been a poor man who was in the same predicament he would long ago have been given up to the U. S. authorities. There is something radically wrong with the laws of Canada when they allow a pampered member of "society" to defy the laws that would have no respect for a poor man. Its time some change was made in the law for deportation of criminals, or the present laws made more stringent.

I will answer both your questions. I have come with that purpose, Murgatroyd said with studied coldness.

In that dispatch box you have papers which I have undertaken to procure.

I hope you were well paid beforehand, with a stress on the last word. You won't get much out of payments by results.

Murgatroyd went on unheeding. It was within your right to accede to my civilly-put request, or to refuse it.

Oh, you admit that! Then, in heaven's name, why are you here? I tell you, as I told you before in Devonshire, nothing will induce me to help one iota either you or your employers.

You had a right to refuse me holding no official position. My impression is the Government could have compelled you in the Court to produce documents for inspection which were of international import.

Muller ostentatiously yawned, and pulled out his watch.

This is rather a late hour to discuss points of law, is it not? he asked with bland good humor; which was almost more exasperating than the sarcasm which had gone before.

Murgatroyd again took no notice of the interjected remark.

Circumstances have totally changed since we last met. I found you an enemy to my country. I now know you to be a traitor—a traitor prepared to sell his treachery to the highest bidder.

Murgatroyd no longer holding himself in reserve, flung out the words into his antagonist's face.

Muller turned white to the ears—white as his shirt-front. Then he struck Murgatroyd full in the chest with his clenched fist. The blow was doubly effective from its violence and from the fact that it was unexpected.

You liar, Muller hissed out, as he struck. Murgatroyd reeled with the effect of the blow, staggering backwards, and would have fallen, but the wall at the side of the room saved him.

Muller stood with arms outstretched without further movement. He had been carried away to do more than he intended.

Murgatroyd steadied himself by a violent effort. Then he sprang upon Muller, and the two wrestled together in the narrow space the room afforded.

Muller was the heavier, but Murgatroyd had had an English public school and 'Varsity training, which his after-life had strengthened rather than undermined. Round and round they went until Muller caught his foot against the leg of the armchair in which he had been sitting when his visitor arrived, and fell, striking his head on the table edge.

Murgatroyd was dragged down upon him, and the two falling shook the lower rooms, in one of which Inspector Murphy was waiting the turn of events. In a couple of seconds he was at the door of the room above, sending off en route the waiter to the floor, who had been attracted in the same direction by the crash.

Murphy turned the handle of No. 24. It opened. He had almost expected it to be fastened. Then he looked in. Murgatroyd was kneeling by the body of his late antagonist, and with a nervous hand undoing his waistcoat to feel his heart action.

Can I help you? asked the Inspector coolly.

I believe the man is dead! Not he. It takes more than a knock on his thick skull to settle Mr. Muller, I can assure you. Here, help me lift him on to the sofa. He is only stunned a bit.

The Inspector had raised the fallen man's eyelids. He was a connoisseur on the subject, as much as any doctor.

Can you get some water from one of the bedrooms?

Murgatroyd, immensely relieved, went off eagerly. Some seconds elapsed before he could find an unlocked door.

Meanwhile Muller's eyes opened, and he saw a big, strange man looking down upon him.

Who are you? he said.

Inspector Murphy, of Scotland Yard, Mr. Muller.

CHAPTER XII
Creckmated

An extraordinary change passed over Muller's face when he heard the name and official title of the stalwart man before him. Physically he was no coward, but for years he had had a morbid fear of the iron grip of the police. It had not prevented him running the risk, and placing himself in the utmost danger, for that was second nature to him, and his profession and livelihood; but the day of Nemesis had haunted his thoughts and imagination day and night. He was a naturalized British subject. In the dispatch-box on the table beneath the window was sufficient evidence to convict him of treason-felony. Muller's very prosperity accentuated his dread of the doom which awaited him when the culminating secret of his life of treasonable conspiracy and sedition was disclosed, as he felt now it would be in a few moments. He had never feared Murgatroyd, but he feared Murphy; for Murphy was the physical embodiment of the law which he had outraged and set at defiance. Murphy saw the look of fear on Muller's blonde round face, but was at a loss to understand it. He knew enough against Muller to have secured him a warrant; but what he knew was less than nothing compared to the actual facts, which would have sufficed to condemn twenty Mullers. He was powerless, too, practically without a warrant. Whereas Muller had endowed the Inspector with a warrant in imagination the moment he had heard his name. Neither of the men understood the position of the other, and it was as well for the success of Murgatroyd's plans that this film of mystification prevailed. Had Muller known that Murphy was only a reconnaissance in force, he would have plucked up courage at once. Had Murphy known that absolute, definite proofs of treason of the worst kind rested in that dispatch-box, on which his eyes rested directly he entered the sitting-room, nothing but death itself would have parted him from Muller until he was legally secured.

Muller lay and gazed at the Inspector; Murphy stood over the prostrate man and regarded him with keen scrutiny. Neither spoke. The silence, short as it was, was becoming oppressive, when Murgatroyd came in with a jug of water in his hand. Murphy turned to him.

Mr. Muller has recovered from his faint. I told you his head was thick enough. I will leave you two for a few minutes to finish your business. If you have any difficulty—here he half turned to Muller, speaking at him though not to him—call me; I shall be within ear-shot.

Inspector Murphy had divined, so far at any rate, that Muller was afraid of him, and not of Murgatroyd. But the idea did not rouse his suspicions to the real truth; for the police are quite accustomed to the atmosphere of respect.

After the Inspector had left the room, Muller shook himself and sat up. He seemed still a little dazed with the fall, but nothing else.

Is he coming back?

Not unless he is wanted. In that case he will have charge of the matter instead of me.

Murgatroyd too had read the signs of the times, and more distinctly than Murphy, because he had more data to go upon to form a judgment.

Muller shifted uneasily. His face was still white; he looked curiously unhealthy and repugnant. Only his color as a rule rendered him passably good-looking. The sense of defeat which appeared in his eyes and about the corners of his mouth, and the paleness combined, suggested the high-placed criminal.

I want three things. In the first place, the loan of the Transalpine documents. They shall be returned to the address you select.

Why not here?

Because you will not be here. I don't understand.

Muller passed his handkerchief over his brow to wipe the dotted beads of perspiration from it.

You will directly, Murgatroyd answered coldly.

In the second place, you will destroy all the maps, plans and treasonable documents contained in that dispatch-box.

Muller was about to protest that there were none such in his possession but Murgatroyd waved him to silence. How the latter had obtained his information was the mystery of mysteries. Muller could only imagine

When you want to clear your house of flies, see that you get that one or more of the three men had gone straight to the journalist and sold the secret. He did not trust any one a hair's breadth; yet he had relied upon their fear, for his vengeance would be terrible, and he held all their lives in the hollow of his hand. This questioning passed rapidly through his mind in the pause before Murgatroyd advanced his third proviso.

WILSON'S
FLY PADS

Imitations are always unsatisfactory.

In the third place, you will leave England before tomorrow night. If you return within ten years, all the information in my possession will be placed in the hands of the police.

Muller gazed at him sullenly.

You are a hard task-master, now you have got the upper hand, and he brought his fat fist heavily down on the table.

If you make a noise Inspector Murphy will come in; you will find him a harder one.

I shall have to get the key from my bedroom.

You will not go out of my sight; I will come with you—if it is really there.

Murgatroyd did not believe for an instant that Muller would be separated from that key; he felt sure he had it about with him.

Does Mr. James Smith live here? asked the father.

THE "BLUES"

A Lady Finds Help from Simple Food

Civilization brings blessings and also responsibilities.

The more highly organized we become the more need there is for regularity and natural simplicity in the food we eat.

The laws of body nutrition should be carefully obeyed, and the finer more highly developed brain and nervous system not hampered by a complicated, unwholesome dietary.

A lady of high nervous tension says:

"For fifteen years I was a sufferer from dyspepsia. I confess that an improperly regulated diet was the chief cause of my suffering. Finally nothing that I ate seemed to agree with my stomach, and life, at times, did not seem worth living."

"I began to take a pessimistic view of everything and see life through dark blue glass, so to speak. My head became affected with a heavy creeping sensation and I feared paralysis."

"Palpitation of the heart caused me to fear that I might die suddenly. Two years ago, hearing Grape-Nuts so highly spoken of by some estimable friends of mine, I determined to try it."

The change in my condition was little less than miraculous. In a short time the palpitation, bad feeling in head and body began to disappear and the improvement has continued until at the present time I find myself in better health than I have ever enjoyed."

"My weight has increased 20 lbs in the last year and life looks bright and sunny to me as it did when I was a child."

Not for Him

An unexplained incident with a humorous side occurred at a railway station. A train was drawing out from the station when a man came running along the platform. Smith! Smith! Smith! he shouted.

In a car at the rear of the train sat a passenger, who, hearing the cry, thrust his head out of the window. Immediately the runner on the platform struck him a smart blow across the cheek.

Every moment the wheels were revolving more swiftly, and before the insulted passenger could call an official the train was clear of the station. He went at once to the conductor's quarters.

What kind of an outrage is this? he demanded. Here am I, an innocent passenger, sitting quietly just as the train pulls out of the station. Suddenly a man runs down the platform shrieking Smith! Smith! I look out of the window, and he reaches up and almost knocks my head off! Now, I want to—

Pardon me, interrupted the conductor. Is your name Smith?

No it isn't and that is just what makes—

Well, then, sir, what did you look out of the window for? There was not anybody calling you, was there?

Worms in children work havoc. These pests attack the tender lining of the intestines and if left to pursue their ravages undisturbed, will ultimately perforate the wall, because these worms are of the hook variety that cling to and feed upon interior surfaces. Miller's Worm Powders will not only exterminate these worms of whatever variety, but will serve to repair the injury they have done.

Horse Always Lost

The passenger inside the cab suddenly put his head out of the window and exclaimed to the driver: Get on, man; get on. Wake up your nag.

Shure, sor. I haven't the heart to bate him.

What's the matter with him. Is he sick?

No, sor, he's not sick, but it's unlucky he is, sir, unlucky. You see, sor, every morning afore I put 'im in the cab, I tosses 'im whether he'll ave a feed of oats or I'll have a drink of whisky, an' the poor baste has lost five mornings running.

Difficult to Catch

An Englishman who was appointed to an important post in China got married soon after. Amongst the recipients of the usual little cardboard boxes containing a piece of wedding cake was a Chinese merchant with whom the bridegroom had an outstanding account for goods supplied. After the honeymoon one of the first persons the newly-wedded husband met was his Celestial creditor.

And how did you like the cake? said the Englishman, laughing, after the usual congratulations.

Ah, ha! returned the Chinaman, with a cunning leer, me no such a big fool to eat him, sah. Me put cakee in fire. Burn him up. He! he.

Oh, that's too bad! said the Englishman, very much hurt. You might have tasted it at least, out of compliment to my wife, and myself. Why didn't you?

Me too chine, sah, said the Celestial, with the same cunning smile. You owe me monee, sah! sendee poison cake; I eat him; I die; you no payee up. Houppla. He! he! he! I know you Engleese.

I Should Worry

Mrs. Smith was repeatedly reminding her husband that she owned the silver, that she owned the furniture, that the piano was her own private property, and so on until poor Smith began to wonder what she'd claim next.

The other night Mrs. S. woke in alarm. Strange sounds were heard in the lower parts of the house, and quickly rousing her husband, she cried:

John, John! Get up! There are burglars in the house!

Oh? inquired Mr. Smith, rubbing his eyes.

Burglars downstairs, repeated Mrs. S.

Burglars? said Smith, as he turned over. Well, I should worry. I don't own anything.

Officer (to recruit who has missed every shot)—Good heavens, man, where are your shots going?

Recruit (nervously)—I don't know, sir; they left here all right.

FROM ARMS TO

Also on Face. Began to Ooze Water-like Matter. Torture of Itchiness. Pimples Festered and Enlarged. Cured in Two Weeks, Thanks to Cuticura Soap and Ointment.

Mr. Elgin, Ind. Institute, Muncey, Ontario.—"I suffered from skin trouble for two months before taking Cuticura Remedies. The trouble started from itchiness on the back of the hands. When irritated, this itchiness turned to pimples. These pimples soon began to spread up the arms, from the arms to my whole body. They also came up on the face. Having spread over my body they became irritated by my clothing. They began to ooze water-like matter. Then began an almost killing torture of itchiness. When I scratched I seemed to scalp the pimples and make them extremely sore. They festered and enlarged, then they opened and left sore spots. These spots became scabbed and sore beyond expression."

"I sent for a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment which I received quicker than I expected. I was much relieved at the first application. I continued applying the Cuticura Remedies for two straight weeks, then I was completely cured, thanks to Cuticura Soap and Ointment." (Signed) John Jamieson, Mar. 6, 1912.

Knew Him Well

A certain cantankerous old gentleman not long ago advertised for a coachman, who was required, among other qualifications, to possess an intimate acquaintance with the neighborhood; but, to his great surprise, he received not a single application for the vacant post.

I cannot understand it at all, he said, as during a chat one day with an old hostler at the local livery stables he had mentioned the fact.

Let me see, said the latter, as a gleam of intelligence flitted across his face, ye had advertised, I believe, for one as must be well acquainted with the neighborhood, didn't ye?

I did, replied the old gentleman, shortly. I want some one who knows his way about.

Ah, that explains it, was the answer. Ye see, they who know the neighborhood well know ye, too.

HAD A STROKE OF PARALYSIS

And Found a Cure in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

It is always better to prevent serious diseases of the nerves. There are many warnings, such as sleeplessness, irritability, headaches and nervous indigestion.

Prostration, paralysis and locomotor ataxia only come when the nervous system is greatly exhausted. Even though your ailment may not yet be very serious, there is a great satisfaction in knowing that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will cure paralysis in its earlier stages.

Mrs. R. Bright, 215 Booth Avenue, Toronto, writes: "Two years ago my husband had a stroke which left him in a weak, nervous condition. He started taking Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills, and we saw the good results almost immediately. They have made a new man of my husband and we cannot speak too highly of them."

He (dejectedly)—Tell me the truth. Is it my poverty that stands between us?

She (sadly)—Yes.

He (with a ray of hope)—I admit that I am poor, and so, unfortunately, is my father; but I have an aged uncle who is very rich and a bachelor. He is an invalid, and cannot long survive. She (delightedly)—How kind and thoughtful you are! Will you introduce him to me?

I am sending you some manuscript, wrote the budding authoress. I also inclose a letter of introduction from the vicar, one from my teacher, and a paragraph from our local paper, telling of my adoption of a literary career. Is there anything else I might send you to interest you in my writings?

Dear Madam, wrote the perspiring editor in reply, you need send me but one thing—a good short story.

The Scientific Farming of the Woodlot

"There is no part of the farm which will give bigger returns for so little expenditure of time and labor as the woodlot." This statement in the July number of the Canadian Forestry Journal, made by Mr. B. R. Morton, B. Sc. F., the silvical expert who is engaged by the Forestry Branch at Ottawa to demonstrate to the woodland owners of eastern Canada just how these bigger returns may be achieved. But if it is not possible to obtain such expert advice, there are yet three ways in which the farmer, by the exercise of ordinary common sense, can vastly improve the composition, production and reproduction of his woodlot.

The first thing necessary is to improve the character of the crop, which can be done by cutting down and using for firewood all diseased and deformed trees, as well as such species whose presence in the woodlot is not desirable. Only too frequently is the method of cutting exactly the reverse. The best trees are cut, often for purposes for which an inferior wood would serve, and the poorer species are left seed-in the cut-over areas and to gradually crowd out the better varieties. Before cutting, the farmer should consider first the use to which the wood is to be put, and second, the species-composition of the woodlot which is most desirable. Firewood probably yields the best returns for a small acreage and for this purpose rapid-growers such as poplar, ash and elm should be encouraged, which should make an annual growth of from one-half to one cord per acre. Basswood too, will be in increasing demand because of its rapid growth, because it coppices readily and because of its value in small sizes for the manufacture of excelsior, cooperage stock and other small articles for which the wood is particularly adapted. Maple reproduces readily, and although not a rapid grower, it nevertheless yields a substantial revenue when it becomes large enough to tap. Soft woods like spruce, balsam and the grow much more rapidly than hardwoods and might be advantageously grown for fuel or pulpwood.

When the most suitable species have been selected and the weed-trees removed, the woodlot must then be thinned until the crowns of the best-formed remaining trees are seen to barely touch. An acre can only produce a given amount of wood each year and the fewer trees there are to share this yearly increment, the more rapid will be the growth of these trees.

The third requisite in the scientific farming of the woodlot, is that the cattle be kept out, especially after heavy cutting, when reproduction is most desired. Cattle are just as injurious to a young crop of tree-seedlings as they are to a young crop of grain. They may indeed eat the grass in the woodlot, but they would just as soon, if not sooner, eat the young and tender hardwood shoots, and the same can be said of sheep. Even coniferous seedlings are not immune so that certainty in reproduction is only assured by fencing off the cut-over areas. Dr. Fernow predicts that "There will be a time when the woodlot will sell the farm or will be a net loss." In the seasons when his other work slackens the farmer could very easily improve his woodlot in anticipation of this time of increased wood values.

To Men Who Live Inactive Lives.

Exercise in the open air is the best tonic for the stomach and system generally; but there are those who are compelled to follow sedentary occupations and the inactivity tends to restrict the healthy action of the digestive organs and sickness follows. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills regulate the stomach and liver and restore healthy action. It is wise to have a packet of the pills always on hand.

Willie's Threat

Willie was a little fellow of eight, who with his mother, stayed at the house of an aunt without having made provision to sleep. There being no small boys in his aunt's family, Willie was put to bed in one of his little cousin Deborah's nightgowns. He was very indignant at having to wear anything with so many frills and so much lace round the neck and on the sleeves.

I won't stand it, mother, he protested loudly on the second night. I won't wear anything so girly! I'll run away, you see if I don't, before I'll put that thing on again. Why, rather than wear that—that horrid nightgown—I'll sleep raw!

Requisite Knowledge

As a country physician was driving through a village he saw a man amusing a crowd with the antics of his trick dog. The doctor pulled up and said:

My dear man, how do you manage to train your dog like that? I can't teach mine a single trick.

The man looked up with a simple rustic look, and replied: Well, you see, it's this way: you have to know more'n the dog or you can't learn him nothin'!

Marvellous

I have been taking some moving pictures of life on your farm, said the photographer to an agriculturist. Did you catch my laborers in motion? I asked the farmer.

I think so. Ah, well, science is a wonderful thing!

Wrong all the Time

A political speaker was attacking the Government with more venom than reason. A man at the back of the hall at last cried out: You're wrong, sir! A little nettled, the orator continued without heeding.

Presently, in answer to another strong assertion, came again: You're wrong sir! The speaker looked angry, but continued on the war path.

You're wrong, sir, again rang out. Angriest of all, the persistent one, the orator cried: Look here, I could tell this man something about this Government which would make his hair stand on end!

You're wrong again, sir! came exultantly from the critic as he stood up and removed his hat. His head was as bald as an egg.

No Pigeon

The old lady was about to make a railway journey for the first time, and when she arrived at the station she did not know what to do.

Young man, she said to a porter, who looked about as old as Methuselah, can you tell me where I can get my ticket?

Why, mum, he replied, you get it at the booking-office, through the pigeon-hole.

Being very stout, she looked at the hole in amazement, and then she burst out in a rage.

Go away with you! How can I get through there? I ain't no blessed pigeon!

Risky

Builder's Man—Hi, guv'nor, that new row of 'ouses in Maple Grove are all fallen down like a pack of cards. Builder—Idiot! Didn't I tell you not to take the scaffolding down till you'd put up the wall-papers?

Waiting at the Church

A young man lived at some distance from his bride-elect. In the eventful day he set off for the station in good time, but, being delayed by friends, he missed his train. Then he thought himself of a telegram.

Don't marry till I come—William! was the message he wired.

The Real Worry

Chief of Detectives—Now, give us a description of your missing cashier. How tall was he?

Business Man—I don't know how tall he was. What worries me is that he was $12,000 short.

Hospitality

And did you enjoy your African trip, major? How did you like the savages?

Oh, they were extremely kind-hearted! They wanted to keep me there for dinner!

Rejected Cabinets

Irate Woman—The photographs you took of myself and husband are not at all satisfactory and I refuse to accept them.

Photographer—What's wrong with them?

Irate Woman—What's wrong? Why, my husband looks like a baboon.

Photographer—Well, that's no fault of mine, madam. You should have thought of that before you had him taken.

Not Hurt Socially

I wouldn't associate with him. I understand he's served a term in prison.

That's true, but it was for an offense involving a million dollars or more; nothing really disgraceful you know.

Must Chew the Pill

Is there any way you can suggest by which we can cure her of her infatuation for him?

Oh, yes, that's easy. Just—

I mean without letting her marry him?

Easy Marks

Some men haven't any more caution when they happen to get a little money than to show it to the family.

Now, name some things, said she, that are very dangerous to get near to and that have horns.

Writer's Cramp

Pa, what is writer's cramp?

It's being cramped for money, my son. All writers suffer from it.

Critic (as the composer played his last piece)—Very fine indeed. But what is that passage which makes the cold chills run down the back? Composer—That is where the wanderer has the hotel bill brought to him.

TETLEY'S TEA

George's Error

On a wet, cold, February day, George Farmer stood coughing before a chemist's window.

His eye rested on a placard, which said:

No more Coughs.

No more colds.

25c. per bottle.

George entered the shop. The chemist said he could guarantee the anti-cold remedy, and the young man bought a bottle.

Two days later he returned again through mire and sleet.

I have drunk the mixture, he gasped, and it seems to have plugged up my throat, I can hardly breathe!

The chemist started. You drank it? he cried. Why man, it's an indiarubber solution to put on the soles of your shoes.

GOOD BLOOD THE SECRET OF HEALTH

To be Healthy You Must Keep the Blood Rich, Red and Pure

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are useful in any disease caused by thin or impure blood, and the list of such diseases is astonishingly large. Anaemia literally means a condition in which the blood is thin and watery. In rheumatism the blood becomes thin more rapidly than in any other disease. After an attack of influenza or acute fevers the blood is always thin and impure, and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the tonic to use during convalescence. When the blood is poor and thin the stomach suffers. The food ferments, gas and certain acids form and the trouble is pronounced indigestion or dyspepsia. The nerves receive from the blood all of their nourishment to keep up their energy and repair waste or damage. Some forms of paralysis are caused by thin blood. The progress of locomotor ataxia is stopped in many cases when the blood is made pure, rich and red. This is only a partial list of the troubles having their origin in impure, watery blood, and all can be cured by supplying the blood with its missing constituents.

This is exactly what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do. Their chief mission is to make rich, red blood, and this good blood reaches every organ and every nerve in the human body, thus driving out disease and bringing renewed health and strength to thousands of weak, despondent people.

Ask your neighbors. There is not an inhabitant corner in Canada where Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have not restored some sufferer, and all over this country there are grateful people who do not hesitate to say they owe health—in some cases life itself—to this great medicine. If you are ailing begin to cure yourself today by using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Sold by all dealers in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Co., Brockville, Ont.

Epsom Salts

A distinguished foreigner visiting Epsom Downs in Thackeray's company noticed many men dressed as sailors who were not, to native and experienced eyes, the real article.

Ah, said the visitor, these are, I suppose, what you call your British tars?

Oh, no, replied Thackeray. Only Epsom salts.

A Long Time Ago

John, that is a very shabby office coat you're wearing, remarked his employer.

Yes, sir, said the old clerk meaningly. I got this coat with the last rise you gave me.

Teacher—Now, boys, here's a little example in mental arithmetic. How old would a person be who was born in 1876?

Pupil—Please, teacher, was it a man or woman?

According to Passport

An amusing story—which shows the value of the passport system—comes from Russia. Prince Metcheksky, who is a journalist by profession, was commissioned by the Czar to investigate certain agrarian troubles. The Prince went to Roumania, and there obtained one of the permits necessary for taking livestock across the frontier.

Then he went to a Russian frontier post and presented the document to the official as his warrant to pass. The official could read but little Russian and knew no Roumanian, but the big document, with the coat of arms and seal, greatly impressed him, and he cheerily put the Russian official stamp on it.

His investigations ended, the Prince went back to Moscow, and at the first opportunity presented the passport to the governor, saying:

With this document I entered Roumania, and traveled about for five months yet you must admit that the description of me is scarcely correct or flattering.

The amazed governor read that the Prince was one black sow, full grown, with one ear partly torn away.

When Holloway's Corn Cure is applied to a corn or wart it kills the roots and the callosity comes out with out injury to the flesh.

Mlle. Gaby Deslys, the French dancer, is an exceedingly slender young person, and for purposes of better demonstrating her art she wears, when on the stage, exceedingly slender clothes. A person from the interior who had seen the lady, came forth to tell about her.

What does she look like? asked a friend.

Well, said the visitor, if she'd shut one eye she'd look like a needle.

Minard's Liniment Cures Colds, Etc.

Children, said the minister, addressing the Sunday school, I want to talk to you a few moments about one of the most important organs in the world. What is it that thrubs away, away, never stopping, never ceasing, whether you wake or sleep, night and day, week in and week out, without any volition on your part, hidden away as it were, in the depths, unseen by you, throbbing, throbbing, rhythmically all your life long?

And during the pause of oratorical effect came a small voice: The Gas meter.

One day an Irishman met an Englishman and accosted him thus:

Do you know in what month of the year my wife talks the least?

Well, I suppose when she catches cold and loses her voice, said the Englishman.

Not at all. It is in February, said Paddy.

Why is that? asked the Englishman. Because February has the fewest days.

The Easy Laxative

In justice to yourself you should try Rexall Orderlies, — your money back if you don't like them. They are a candy confection that really do give easy relief from constipation.

Good health is largely dependent upon the bowels. When they become sluggish the waste material that is thrown off by the system accumulates. This condition generates poisons which circulate throughout the body, tending to create coated tongue, bad breath, headache, dull brain action, nervousness, biliousness and other annoyances.

Avoid harsh cathartics and physics.
They give but temporary relief.
They often aggravate the real trouble.
They are particularly bad for children, delicate or aged persons.

Rexall Orderlies

Come in tablet form, taste just like candy and are noted for their easy, soothing action upon the bowels.
They don't purge, gripe, cause nausea, looseness, nor the inconveniences attendant upon the use of purgatives. Their action is so pleasant that the taking of Rexall Orderlies almost becomes a desire instead of a duty.

Children like Rexall Orderlies.
They are ideal for aged or delicate persons as well as for the most robust.

They act toward relieving constipation, and also to overcome its cause and to make unnecessary the frequent use of laxatives. They serve to tone and strengthen the nerves and muscles of the bowels and associate organs or glands.

Make Us Prove It

We guarantee to refund every penny paid us for Rexall Orderlies if they do not give entire satisfaction.
We ask no promises and we in no way obligate you. Your mere word is sufficient for us to promptly and cheerfully refund the money.

Doesn't that prove that Rexall Orderlies must be right? You must know we would not dare make such a promise unless we were positively certain that Rexall Orderlies will do all we claim for them. There is no money risk attached to a trial of Rexall Orderlies, and in justice to yourself, you should not hesitate to test them.

Rexall Orderlies come in convenient vest-pocket size tin boxes, 12 tablets, 10c; 25 tablets, 25c; 50 tablets, 50c.

CAUTION: Please bear in mind that Rexall Orderlies are not sold by all druggists. You can buy Rexall Orderlies only at the Rexall Stores.
You can buy Rexall Orderlies in this community only at our store:
